

Install and Setup WooCommerce

- In your WordPress dashboard, go to Plugins > Add New. Search for WooCommerce and then install and activate the plugin.
- Once the plugin is active, run the setup wizard.
- Enter your store's details, configure payment gateways, select your shipping and tax options
- When you're done entering all the information, click Add Your First Product.

Adding Your First Product

- In the post editor, enter the product name and a brief description of the product.
- Scroll down to the box that allows you to configure your product details. If you're selling products like t-shirt, jerseys, hats, or anything else that can be modified by size or color or any other attribute, you'll want to select a variable product. If you're creating a digital product, you can select Simple and then tick the box next to Downloadable.
- Set to product to variable.
- Create the size attribute first by clicking on Attributes and then pressing the button Add. In the box below, enter the name such as Size, and then enter the attributes separated by |. Then, click Save.
- Once the attributes have been saved, click on Variations. Select the option to add variations and click Go. After the variations have been created, click on Save changes.
- To set the price for the product, click on the link that says Expand Variation. Here, you can enter the price, manage stock status, and assign shipping and tax classes.
- Configure other details such as stock status, product dimensions, and others as necessary.
- If you're selling products for multiple team, activate WooCommerce for SportsPress extension and then select the team in the Team box on the right hand side.
- When you're done entering all the information, simply click Publish and your product will be live.
